President To Take Direct Hand On Military Budget

Eisenhower has decided to take a priations Committee. direct hand in the close Senate military budget, which reduces Army strength several hundred thousand troops.

The President is intervening at the urgent request of Republican members of the Senate Appropriations Committee, which is considering the controversial bud-

Senators Edward Thye, Minn. and Margaret Chase Smith, Me., particularly advised this, following the opposition testimony of General Matthew Ridgway. The two Republican leaders warned that only the President's personal influence could offset the powerful impression made by the Army Chief of Staff.

Ridgway disclosed, in response to Committee questions, that he had recommended an Army-force of 1,300,000 and that the Joint Chiefs of Staff were not consulted in the decision to cut the Army to 1,080,000 by June 1956.

-by Harry Boyd

The President will throw his weight into this fight with a letter to the key Senate Committee stressing three factors:

The Army, now totaling 1,270,-000, is twice the size of all U.S. forces before the Korean war, and also has far greater fire power than at the height of that

More than 750,000 trained men have been released by the Army in the past twelve months, thus providing a highly effective ready reserve in the event of a war emergency.

The Army program is extremely flexible and can be quickly changed to meet any situation.

Note: Army Undersecretary Charles Finucane asked at a private Committee meeting what he thinks of General Ridgway, replied, "In my opinion he is one of the greatest combat leaders and one of the most competent Chiefs of Staff of our time. His ability to inspire troops, his extraordinary understanding of battle conditions, and his forcefulness and doesn't know what kind of a day it is but is telling them what he courage in taking advantage of every opportunity have turned. several times in our recent hisable percentage of readers will promptly conclude that he isn't for it day of defeat into a bright day advertising out of the paper. (2) A setback in the powerful Senate Committee would be difficult to reverse in the full Senate. It would necessitate a bitter row which the Administration is anxlous to avoid, particularly beeause of its possible adverse effect on the House if the Senate should refuse to approve the proposed Army cut.

That's why the President has acceded to the pleas of Senators Thye, Smith and others to personally go to bat for his threatened hudget

Other testimony, besides General Ridgway's, is playing into opposition hands. This applies particularly to one disclosure by Undersecretary Finucane regarding an unannounced steep cutback in Army funds.

The unpublished transcript reyeals that Finucane, under questioning, stated that one-half of the $3,000,000,000 that will be needed in the coming fiscal year, starting July 1, to meet the cost of the Military pay boost, new housing and so-called "fringe benefits," will be taken from Army funds voted by Congress for entirely different purposes.

As explained to the surprised Committee by Finucane, under this secret plan, $8,000,000 in procurement funds and $7,000,000 in other appropriations will be taken from the Army to provide a total of $1,500,000,000 for various benefits for all the military services. Committeemen sharply assailed the proposal at this private session, and more is certain to be heard of the matter when the issue reaches the Senate floor. Note: Air Force Secretary Harold Talbott, noted for his trigger temper, when asked at a Committee session if he had made any mistakes, retorted, "Yes, I've made a good many of them since taking office and will continue to do so. Why right now we are doing things which' I highly distory, what was apparently a dark approve of, but haven't had the time to correct as yet." Questioned about relations with Air Chief of Staff Twining. Talbott said, "We have weighty discussions, but there has never been a time when the smoke cleared away that we Monroe County's potato growers may be headed for some headaches based on over production, if the general report covering the Pennsylvania potato picture, but more especially, production reports from other sections of the nation, hold up.

-by H. G. Heller

There's only one result from over production - market prices are knocked down.

Pennsylvania's potato growers may once again be plagued by over production in other parts of the nation which could knock down market prices.

The U.S. Agriculture Dept. declares flatly that too much potato acreage is planned in 1955

"If the acreage now planned in the 29 late states is actually planted average yields will produce a crop two per cent larger than 1954 production and eight per cent larger than recommended by the department for 1955," the USDA said in a report.

The department has warned that production should be about five per cent less than last year "if marketing difficulties are to be avoided.

The department said that in 1953 and again in 1954 production excess of demand affected markets adversely and reduced returns to farmers in several important producing areas.

But in other northeastern areas production will be up this way: Maine, 15 per cent and Long Island, 6 per cent.

The department said that if these areas and others in the west and midwest produce as indicated, there will be a surplus of 21 million bushels of potatoes.

Previously the department auggested that Maine cut its produc tion by 15 per cent, and Long Iv-

Important Questions Answered

OUR 8 YEAR-OLD son's room also serves as a guest room. It has a twin bed suite in reddish maple; pink, beige, blue and tan plaid wallpaper; powder blue woodwork and a tan marbleized lipoleun floor covering with blue accent stripe. Will you give some suggestions for rugs, draperies, bedspreads and boudoir chair cover

I suggest maroon, shag type rugs; blue draperies; maroon bedspreads and a beige-on-blue pattern chair cover.

BY BEDROOM is small and the furniture consists of one double iron bed and one three-quarter, a clumsy chest of drawers, a small dresser, a sewing machine and a small unpainted combination table and bookrack. My circumstances will not permit me to do much in the way of redecorating but I can get paint and bedspreads. What colors should I paint the walls, woodwork and furniture and what should I get for the bedspreads?

Here are some ideas you might like: Walls and woodwork, apple green; furniture, ivory. For the beds I suggest making slip covers of chints with a floral pattern in Unfinished background with bedspreads of plain green chintz with the floral Surfaces pattern repeated in the dust ruffles.

Moving Trick

THE SIMPLEST way to move a piece of heavy furniture is to tilt it so a piece of carpeting can be slipped under the legs, and then just pull it along on this. It saves the finish on the floor, too.

Two decades ago, it took an average of 3 months' wages to pay the hospital bills resulting from a case of pneumonia. Today a case of pneumonia is cured at home - with drugs that cost an average of only 5 hours' wages. This is one of many facts which proves today's prescription is one of the biggest bargains in history.

Chestnuthill High's gymnasium is now in the process of getting a new coat of paint. Otto "Junior" Millis, veteran baseball coach at Chestnuthill High, is still wearing his good luck fishing hat this season. The lucky hat helped his stusents compile a 6-1 nod over Tobytianna Township in the opening game of the Monroe County League yesterday. Chestnuthill is currently shooting for its third straight title.

The new gymnasium at Strondsburg High School, according to reports making the rounds, will be a combination of the new gymnaciums at Parkland and Catasauqua. It will seat 1,400 people and may be finished in time for next basketball season. The old gym, which needs replacing very badly, will be turned into a cafeteria. Last Saturday's finish to the Delaware Valley League bowling season has had more people talking than any other sport in the area in recent months. Both leaders losing four points on the final date certainly would have brought about some fancy betting quotations. As it is the finish certainly must go down as one of those believe it or not instances.
